PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The focus of this program is obtaining the physique of Baki Hanma. This means the focus is entirely on training to look like him rather than training like him. (Unlike the Batman 2022 Program).

The program will consist of the following:

Weightlifting	Strength training using weights to build muscle and improve strength. Increases muscle mass, boost metabolism, and enhance bone density.
Calisthenics	Exercises that uses bodyweight movements and minimal equipment to build strength and flexibility.
Boxing Drills	Dynamic and skill-based exercises that simulate the movements used in boxing training. Includes punching, footwork, and defensive maneuvers. Necessary for developing agility, speed, and hand-eye coordination. Will be used as a form of cardio in this program.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The focus of this program is entirely to achieve a body like Baki. He's muscular overall, but his strong points are his chest, upper back, abs, calves, and forearms. This means you have to train the whole body but with focus on these muscle groups. His neck is also a strong point, so neck training will be included as well. This a 4 Week Split that you repeat twice before deloading and then repeating again. We'll be following a 6 Day/Week Split. This consists of 2 upper body days, 2 lower body days, an accessory day, and an active recovery day.

F.A.Q.

1. What gym equipment do I need?

A: For this program in particular, all you need is access to barbells, dumbbells, and a punching bag (optional). Ideally, you'll want to have a gym membership, specifically an MMA gym, since they're more likely to have punching bags and other people willing to spar with you. If you're looking to purchase equipment, there is a list of Amazon Affiliate Links of gym equipment you may need on page .

2. How do I know if I am progressing?

A: Bodybuilding is a slow process and you have to accept that. It is hard to determine if you're making progress visually from day to day or even week to week. I'd recommend utilizing progress pictures every 1-2 months to see differences. Remember, if you're consistently training hard, eating enough, and getting enough sleep you are most likely progressing.

3. How much muscle can I expect to gain?

A: The amount of muscle you put on is determined by your genetics and how hard you work. It can also be determined by if you've weight trained before. If you're new to lifting, you can expect to put on more muscle mass than someone who has been going to the gym for 3 years.

4. Should I cut or bulk?

A: For this specific program and most programs in general, you should be eating in caloric surplus of 300-500 calories. Eating in a caloric surplus will give you the best results and the fastest recovery during rest days.

5. I'm getting sore from my workouts. Should I skip my training?

A: New stresses on the body such as from weightlifting will cause you to be sore. You should be focusing as much as possible on recovery which includes: sleep, stretching, and massaging/foaming sore muscles to minimize soreness as much as possible. You should still train when you're sore, however, if the soreness prevents you from completing exercises as you normally do, then I recommend skipping until the soreness is gone. Muscle soreness is a part of training especially when you start off so you'll have to get used to working around it.

6. How should I implement this program?

A: This program is a 4 week split that you repeat twice a week before deloading. (Deloading is when you either take a week off from training or train with much less intensity for a week for the purpose of recovery)

WARM UP

Before we look at how exactly you should warm up, it's important to understand the purpose of warming up. Some reasons to warm up are:

1. Improved Performance
2. Increased Blood Flow
3. Enhance Muscle Flexibility
4. Injury Prevention
5. Reduced Muscle Stiffness
6. Mental Preparation
7. Post-Workout Recovery

Clearly, warming up is crucial and skipping it is detrimental to your gains and if you choose to skip warming up, you're only hurting yourself in the long run and are bound to suffer from preventable injuries.

There's a variety of ways to warm up. The easiest and simple way is to do pyramid sets in which you start your exercise with 1-3 light sets. For example, before benching heavy in your working sets, you'd do the following: The Bar (45 LBS/20KG) for 20 reps followed by a plate (135 LBS/61KG) for 10 reps before moving on to your working sets. You can also warm up by using the following routine. You don't have to follow it completely and just use it as a guideline until you feel ready to move on to the full workout.

WARM UP

Exercise	Sets	Reps/Time	Notes
LOW INTENSITY CARDIO	N/A	5-10MIN	Pick any machine such as a treadmill or any form of cardio of your choice such as shadow boxing to increase your heartrate.
